If so, there's some important information you need to know before you meet with your health care provider.

Things to know before you meet with your health care provider:

- The NJ Motor Vehicle Commission is working with NJ health care providers to implement a pilot vision program to ensure that a driver has a visual acuity measurement of at least 20-50 in one eye with or without corrective lenses.
- Individuals who volunteer for the vision program will not need to complete a vision screening again for at least 10 years if they meet the vision standard.
- If you would like to participate in the vision program, you must visit a participating professional, advise them that you would like to volunteer and provide a valid driver license for scanning purposes.
- The medical professional will conduct a vision screening and submit your results through an online reporting program.
- Once the results are submitted, the MVC will update your motor vehicle record.
- Vision restrictions may be added or dropped through this online reporting program.
